

SUMMARY: The document below is the copy on the Close Rolls of the indenture, dated 7 October 1601 and enrolled in Chancery 2 March 1602, by which Nicholas Brend (d. 12 October 1601), in consideration that Sir Matthew Browne (d.1603), John Collett and John Bodley of Streatham had entered into bonds for payment of Brend's debts amounting to £1478, and in consideration for £250 paid to Brend by John Collett and 5 shillings paid to Brend by Sir Matthew Browne, mortgaged certain properties in Southwark in Surrey to Browne and Collett, including the Globe playhouse. The indenture below specifically states that the playhouse and all the other properties included in the indenture were owned in fee simple by Nicholas Brend, and were being sold in fee simple to Browne and Collett. However the indenture contains a clause by which the sale would be reversed if Nicholas Brend or his heirs were to save Browne, Collett and Bodley harmless from the bonds they had entered into for payment of his debts, and if Brend or his heirs repaid Collett the £250 before 13 January next following. The indenture of 'bargain and sale' of 7 October 1601 was thus, in effect, a mortgage.

The following day, 8 October, Nicholas Brend entered into a recognizance to Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett in the amount of £2500 as security for performance of the indenture below (see TNA C 54/1705, mm. 24-5).

Two days later, on 10 October 1601, Brend entered into a further indenture which included not only his properties in Southwark covered by the indenture below, but also his properties in London, including the inn called the Star and other properties in Bread Street. Moreover in the indenture of 10 October 1601 there was no clause by which the sale could be reversed, and thus, to all intents and purposes, the indenture of 10 October 1601 was an absolute sale (see TNA C 54/1682, mm. 10-11).

Richard Burbage and William Shakespeare, gentlemen, are named among the lessees of Brend's properties in Southwark in both indentures.

Nicholas Brend had leased the ground on which the Globe was built by lease dated 21 February 1599 to Richard Burbage (1568-1619), Cuthbert Burbage (1564/5-1636), William Kempe, Augustine Phillips (d.1605), Thomas Pope (d.1603) John Heminges (1566-1630) and William Shakespeare (1564-1616) of Stratford upon Avon (see TNA REQ 4/1/2):

for the said gardens and grounds whereupon the said playhouse & galleries were afterwards builded were demised & letten by the said Nicholas Brend by his indenture of lease tripartite bearing date in or about the 21st day of February in the 41st year of the reign of the late Queen Elizabeth [=21 February 1599] unto Cuthbert Burbage, Richard Burbage, William Shakespeare, the said Augustine Phillips, Thomas Pope, the said John Heminges, one of the said defendants, and William Kempe, to have and to hold the one moiety of the said garden plots and ground to the said Cuthbert Burbage and Richard Burbage, their executors, administrators & assigns, from the feast of the birth of Our Lord God last past before the date of the said indenture [=25 December 1598] unto the end & term of 31 years from thence next ensuing [=24 December 1629] for the yearly rent of seven pounds & five shillings, and to have & to hold the other moiety of the said garden plots & grounds unto the said William Shakespeare, Augustine Phillips, Thomas Pope, the said John Heminges, one of the said defendants, & William Kempe, their executors, administrators & assigns, from the said feast of the birth of Our Lord God then last past before the date of the said indenture unto the said full end & term of 31 years from thence next ensuing for the like yearly rent of seven pounds & five shillings.

Nicholas Brend was the son of Thomas Brend (d.1598), and his first wife, Margery. For the will of Thomas Brend, see TNA PROB 11/93/316. For the inquisition post mortem taken on 17 May 1599 after the death of Thomas Brend in which Nicholas Brend is said to have been 37 years of age or more at the time of Thomas Brend's death, see TNA C 142/257/68. In the inquisition the Globe is described as:

one house newly built with a garden to the same appertaining in the parish of Saint Saviour's aforesaid in the county of Surrey aforesaid in the occupation of William Shakespeare and others.

For the will of Nicholas Brend, dated 10 October 1601 and proved 6 November 1601, see TNA PROB 11/98/348.

For the inquisition post mortem taken at Southwark on 3 December 1601 concerning lands held by Nicholas Brend, in which the properties in the indenture below are not mentioned, and which was delivered to the court on 27 January 1602 by John Bodley of Streatham, gentleman, see TNA C 142/271/151.

For the final order by which ownership of the Globe playhouse and other properties in Southwark and in Bread Street in London was restored to Matthew Brend (1600-1659), the King's ward, after a lawsuit brought on his behalf by the King's attorney in the Court of Wards, see TNA WARD 9/94, ff. 31-3.

For the copy on the Close Rolls of the indenture, dated 21 February 1622, by which the final order of the Court of Wards was carried out, see TNA C 54/2471, No. 15.

In the lawsuit in the Court of Wards, it is stated that after Sir Matthew Browne's death in 1603 his interest in the indenture below went to John Collett by survivorship. Collett sold his interest in the Globe playhouse, the inn called the Star in Bread Street, and other properties in Southwark and London to John Bodley of Streatham by indenture dated 11 November 1608 (see TNA C 54/1947, mm. 5-6). Collett sold his interest in the Globe playhouse, the inn called the Star in Bread Street, and other properties in Southwark and London to John Bodley of Streatham by indenture dated 11 November 1608 (see TNA C 54/1947, mm. 5-6).

Sir Matthew Browne of Betchworth in Dorking, Surrey, was the son of Sir Thomas Browne (d.1597) of Betchworth and his first wife, Mabel Fitzwilliam (see Richardson, Douglas, Magna Carta Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. I, pp. 342-3). Apart from the fact that in his will Nicholas Brend terms him his 'loving friend', Browne's involvement in the indenture below is unexplained. There is a possible link through the second marriage of Nicholas Brend's widow, Margaret Strelley. After Brend's death, Margaret married the son of Sir Robert Zinzan alias Alexander (d.1607), whose ancestor, Sir William Norris (died c. 10 January 1507), was attainted for his part in the 2nd Duke of Buckingham's rebellion against Richard III, escaped abroad, and returned to England with the future Henry VII. Sir Matthew Browne's ancestor, Sir George Browne, was also attainted for participation in Buckingham's rebellion, and was beheaded on Tower Hill on 4 December 1483. See Richardson, Douglas, Magna Carta Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. I, pp. 340, 351. It appears that there is an as yet untraced connection between these families which motivated Sir Matthew Browne to bind himself as surety for Nicholas Brend's debts, and to become a party to the sale of Nicholas Brend's properties, including the Globe playhouse. For the will of Sir Robert Zinzan alias Alexander, see TNA PROB 11/111/51.

Another possible link between Sir Matthew Browne and Nicholas Brend is through the Burbages. Sir Matthew Browne's father, Sir Thomas Browne (d. 9 February 1597), signed the petition against James Burbage's Blackfriars theatre in November 1596, and in February 1599 Nicholas Brend leased the site of the future Globe playhouse to James Burbage's sons. It thus appears certain that both families knew the Burbages, although that does not offer an explanation for Sir Matthew Browne's willingness to bind himself as surety for Nicholas Brend's debts. For Sir Thomas Browne, see Laoutaris, Chris, Shakespeare and the Countess: The Battle That Gave Birth to the Globe, (London: Fig Tree, 2014), pp. 121, 123, 130, 176-7, 277-8. For the will of Sir Matthew Browne, dated 2 August 1603 and proved 19 April 1608, see TNA PROB 11/111/273.

John Collett, Merchant Taylor of London, was the brother of Nicholas Brend's step-mother, Mercy (nee Collett) Bodley Brend (d. 13 April 1597), and was thus Nicholas Brend's uncle. For the wills of John Collett's father, Humphrey Collett, and mother, Joan (nee Hunt) Collett, see TNA PROB 11/42A/115 and TNA PROB 11/61/389.

John Bodley of Streatham was the son of Francis Bodley (d.1566), citizen and fishmonger of London (for whose will see TNA PROB 11/48/415), and his wife, Mercy Collett (d. 13 April 1597). After Francis Bodley's death, his widow, Mercy, married, as his second wife, Nicholas Brend's father, Thomas Brend (d.1598). John Bodley and Nicholas Brend were thus step-brothers. John Bodley was a Justice of the Peace for Surrey, was knighted by King James at Compton Wynyates in 1617, and in a lawsuit in the Star Chamber in 1623 is described as one of King James' gentleman-pensioners (see TNA STAC 8/74/10). On 13 September 1619 he was one of the witnesses when Edward Alleyn subscribed his name to the deed founding Dulwich College. See Strype's Survey of London at:

John Bodley of Streatham married Jane Evelyn, the daughter of Thomas Evelyn, esquire, of Long Ditton, Surrey. See the will of Thomas Evelyn, TNA PROB 11/130/558, and Bannerman, W. Bruce, ed., The Visitations of the County of Surrey, (London: Harleian Society, 1899), Vol. XLIII, p. 147 at:

For a discussion of the financial arrangements made by Nicholas Brend with Sir Matthew Browne, John Collett and John Bodley of Streatham in the days immediately preceding his death, see Berry, Herbert, Shakespeare's Playhouses, (New York: AMS Press, 1987), pp. 87-8. According to Berry, the financial arrangements for the payment of Brend's debts and the mortgage of his properties were organized by Brend's step-brother, John Bodley. Sir Matthew Browne died in 1603, and John Collett sold his interest to Bodley in 1608. It was thus John Bodley, according to Berry, who:

. . . collected the rents in Bread Street and Southwark from October 10, 1601, and otherwise managed the properties there. From that day, therefore, it was he who effectively owned the Globe. [Brend's] widow, meanwhile, lived with the children on the estate at West Molesey, which she would control until the heir came of age.

According to Berry, over the years the Brend family became dissatisfied with Bodley's handling of the properties, particularly his sale of some of them to Peter Collett (likely Mercy and John Collett's brother of that name), and took Bodley to court on more than one occasion (see Berry, supra, pp. 88-9).

Nicholas Brend's widow was Margaret Strelley, whom he had married about 1595 without his father's consent (see Berry, supra, pp. 84-5, and the will of Nicholas Brend, TNA PROB 11/98/348).

One of those to whom Nicholas Brend owed money named in the schedule of debts below was Mary Radcliffe (c.1550-1617/18), one of the ladies of the Queen's Privy Chamber. According to the entry in the ODNB, she was one of the four daughters and two sons of Sir Humphrey Radcliffe of Elstow, Bedfordshire (1508/9-1566), and his wife, Isabella, daughter of Edmund Harvey and his wife, Margaret Wentworth.

Another debtor was Mary Maylard, the widowed sister of Nicholas Brend. For her husband, Rowland Maylard (d.1596), keeper of the gardens at Hampton Court, see his will, TNA PROB 11/88/255; Berry, supra, pp. 83, 87; and the History of Parliament entry at:

And the said Nicholas Brend, for him, his heirs, executors and administrators and for every of them, doth covenant and grant to and with the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett and either of them, their and either of their heirs and assigns, by these presents in manner and form following, that is to say, that notwithstanding any act or acts to the contrary thereof heretofore made, done, committed or willingly suffered by the said Nicholas Brend and Thomas Brend, deceased, father of the said Nicholas, or by either of them, or hereafter to be made, done, committed or willingly suffered by the said Nicholas Brend, he, the said Nicholas Brend, at th' ensealing and delivery of these presents is and until the time that th' estate by conveyance or assurance of the premises hereupon or by virtue hereof first shall be made, executed and vested to and in the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett and their heirs, shall stand and be lawfully, rightfully and solely seised in his demesne as of fee of and in all and singular the said messuages, tenements, houses, buildings, playhouse, yards, gardens, orchards, void grounds, hereditaments and all other the premises by these presents bargained and sold or mentioned or meant to be bargained and sold, and of every part and parcel thereof, of a good, lawful, sole, rightful and indefeasible estate in the law in fee simple to and for th' only use and behoof of the said Nicholas Brend and of his heirs and assigns forever absolutely, without any manner of condition, limitation of use or uses or other matter or thing whatsoever to alter, determine or defeat the same estate, and now hath and then shall have in himself in his own right full power, good right and lawful interest and ability to bargain, sell, convey and assure all the said premises and every part and parcel thereof to the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett, their heirs and assigns, forever in manner and form aforesaid;

And also that the said messuages, tenements, houses, buildings, playhouse, yards, gardens, void grounds, lands, hereditaments and all other the premises by these presents bargained and sold or herein mentioned or meant to be hereby bargained and sold and every part and parcel thereof at th' ensealing and delivery of these presents are and be and so from henceforth forever shall or may continue and be to the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett, their heirs and assigns, not only free and clear and freely and clearly acquitted, exonerated and discharged of and from all and singular bargains, sales, gifts, grants, leases, mortgages, statutes, recognizances, judgments, extents, executions, fines, foeffments, uses, entails, annuities and rentcharges whatsoever made, done, committed, knowledged or willingly or wittingly suffered by the said Nicholas Brend and Thomas Brend or either of them, or hereafter to be made, done or committed or wittingly or willingly suffered by the said Nicholas, his heirs or assigns, except only as is hereunder in these presents excepted, but also shall be from time to time and at all times hereafter forever well and sufficiently saved and kept harmless by the said Nicholas, his heirs, executors or administrators, of and from all and singular jointures, dowers and other charges, estates, titles, troubles and encumbrances whatsoever had, made, committed, done, caused, procured or suffered or to be had, made, committed, done, caused, procured or suffered by the said Nicholas and Thomas Brend or either of them or the heirs or assigns of either of them, or by any other person or persons by or through their or any of their act, means, estate, right, title or interest, the rents and services from henceforth to become due to be paid and done for the premises to the chief lord or lords of the fee or fees thereof by reason or in respect only of his or their seigniority or seigniories and all lawful leases and estates for years heretofore made or granted by the said Nicholas and Thomas Brend or by either of them of the said premises or of any part or parts thereof to any person or persons for any term or terms of years whereof there is not now to come of any of the said leases or terms above the number of thirty years to have continuance from the date hereof and whereupon such several rents are reserved and shall be yearly due and payable to the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett, their heirs and assigns, during the continuance of the several terms and estates respectively whereupon the same are reserved as do amount in the whole, together with the yearly rents of the premises not letten in lease, to the full and clear yearly rent and value of fourscore and ten pounds per annum of lawful money of England only except and forprised;

Provided always & it is expressly conditioned that if the said Nicholas Brend, his heirs, executors or administrators or some of them, do from time to time and at all times hereafter forever clearly acquit and discharge or else well and sufficiently save and keep harmless the said Sir Mathew Browne, John Bodley & John Collett and every of them, their and every of their heirs, executors & administrators and every of them, and all their and every of their lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, chattels and possessions and every part thereof of, for, from and concerning all and singular the obligations, debts and sums of money whatsoever in the said schedule mentioned or specified and of every part thereof, and of, for, from and concerning all and every other bonds, obligations, debts and sums of money whatsoever wherein or for payment whereof the said Sir Mathew Browne, John Bodley and John Collett and every or any one or moe of them shall hereafter enter or become charged or bound at the request or for the debt of the said Nicholas Brend, and of, for and from all actions, suits, judgments, executions, costs, losses, forfeitures, troubles, damages and demands whatsoever which shall or may arise, grow or happen for, by reason of or concerning the said bonds, obligations, debts and sums of money and every or any of them or any part or parts of them or of any of them in any manner of wise, and if also the said Nicholas Brend, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, do well and truly pay or cause to be paid to the said John Collett, his executors, administrators or assigns, the full sum of two hundred and fifty pounds of lawful money of England at or in the now dwelling-house of Robert Bankworth, scrivener, situate in Bow Lane in London on the thirteenth day of January next ensuing the date of these presents without fraud or further delay, that then and from thenceforth these presents and the grant, bargain, sale, conveyance and assurance hereby made of all the said premises & every covenant, matter and thing herein contained on the part of the said Nicholas Brend to be performed shall be utterly frustrate, void and of none effect to all intents and purposes as if the same had never been made, and at all times after it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Nicholas Brend, his heirs and assigns, into the said premises wholly to re-enter, these presents or anything herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding;

And the said Nicholas Brend, for him, his heirs, executors and administrators and for every of them, doth also covenant, promise & grant to and with the said Sir Mathew [-Mathew] Browne and John Collett and either of them, their heirs and assigns, by these presents that if default shall happen to be made of or in the payment of the said sum of two hundred and fifty pounds by these presents limited to be paid to the said John Collett, his executors or assigns, or of any part or parcel thereof contrary to the form aforesaid, or if the said Sir Mathew Browne, John Bodley and John Collett or any of them, their or any of their heirs, executors or administrators or any of them, shall in any wise hereafter be lawfully damnified by reason or force of or concerning any the bonds, obligations, debts or sums of money wherein or for payment whereof the said Sir Mathew Browne, John Bodley and John Collett or any one or moe of them are entered or become bound or hereafter shall enter or become charged or bound at the request or for the debt of the said Nicholas Brend, or of, for or concerning any part or parts thereof, or by reason or force of any action, suit, trouble, judgment or execution which shall happen hereafter to be brought, taken or prosecuted upon or concerning the said bonds, obligations, debts or sums of money or any of them or any part or parts of them or of any of them, or if otherwise the said proviso or condition shall happen to be infringed or broken, that then and at all times after during the space of seven years then next ensuing he, the said Nicholas Brend, and his heirs, and Margaret, his wife, and every of them, and every other person and persons and their heirs having or lawfully claiming or which shall or may have or rightfully claim to have any lawful estate, right, title, interest or demand of, in, to or out of the said messuages, lands, tenements or hereditaments and other the premises or any of them or any part or parts thereof, other than such person and persons as shall lawfully and rightfully claim by force of the said several leases and estates before herein excepted for or in respect only of the said leases and estates according to the several tenors thereof only & not otherwise, shall and will upon the reasonable request and at the costs and charges in the law only of the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett or either of them, their or either of their heirs or assigns, do, make, knowledge and execute and cause, procure and suffer to be made, done, knowledged and executed all and every such further lawful and reasonable act and acts, device & devices, thing and things in the law whatsoever for the further, better and more perfect conveying, assuring and sure making of all the said lands, hereditaments and other the premises to the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett, their heirs and assigns, to th' only use and behoof of the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett, their heirs and assigns, forever absolutely without any condition as by the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett or either of them, their or either of their heirs or assigns, or by their or any of their counsel learned in the law shall be lawfully and reasonably advised or devised and required, all which further acts, conveyances and assurances shall be and shall be adjudged, deemed and taken to be to and for th' only use and behoof of the said Sir Mathew Browne and John Collett, their heirs and assigns, forever absolutely without any manner of condition, and to none other use, intent or purpose whatsoever;

And further it is covenanted, granted, concluded, condescended and fully agreed by and between the said parties to these presents that it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Nicholas Brend, his hieires [sic] and assigns, to hold and enjoy all the said messuages, tenements, lands, hereditaments and other the premises hereby bargained and sold and every part thereof, and to receive, take and enjoy to his and their proper uses all the rents, issues and profits thereof from time to time coming, arising or increasing from henceforth until default of payment shall happen to be made of or in the payment of the said sum of two hundred & fifty pounds hereby limited to be paid to the said John Collett, his executors or assigns, or of some part or parcel thereof contrary to the form aforesaid, or until such time that some [-some] other breach shall happen to be made of the said proviso or condition herein above specified or of some part or parcel thereof, without any lawful let or interruption of or by the said Sir Mathew Browne & John Collett or either of them, their or either of their heirs or assigns, and without any account therefore or for any part thereof to him, them or any of them to be yelden or given, anything before herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding;

In witness whereof the said parties to these present indentures interchangeably have set their hands and seals, given the day & year first above-written.

LM: Scedula

The schedule whereof mention is made in the indenture whereunto this schedule is annexed, and herein are mentioned and specified certain several obligations wherein Sir Mathew Browne, knight, John Bodley and John Collett in the said indenture named, or some one or moe of them, stand jointly and severally bounden together with Nicholas Brend in the said indenture also named, at the request and for the debt of the said Nicholas, for payment of the particular debts and sums of money herein mentioned or specified, videlicet:

Inprimis, by one obligation to John Scott of the Inner Temple, London, esquire, with condition for payment of two hundred threescore and two pounds ten shillings of lawful money of England at a certain day already past, the bond depending forfeited;

Item, by one obligation to William Playstowe of Pyrford in the county of Surrey, gentleman, with condition for payment of two hundred threescore and two pounds and ten shillings of like money at a day also past, the bond depending forfeited;

Item, by one obligation to Mary Maylard, widow, with condition for payment of one hundred & five pounds at a day already past, the bond depending forfeited;

Item, by one obligation to Richard Rodes of London with condition for payment of fifty-two pounds and ten shillings on the (blank) day of February now next coming;

Item, by one obligation to Thomas Millard of London with condition for payment of one hundred and five pounds at a day past, the bond depending forfeited;
