
SUMMARY: The document below is an excerpt from the declared accounts of the Treasurer of the Chamber for the period 29 September 1594 – 20 October 1595.

The audit year ended at Michaelmas, i.e. 29 September 1595, a date mentioned in many of the entries below. However the audit period was extended in this case to cover the days between the end of the audit year and the death of Sir Thomas Heneage, stated in the document to have been 20 October 1595.

In the transcription below, dates and figures given in Latin have been transcribed in English and in Arabic numerals.

Although it has not been possible to reproduce the accounting format of the original document in the transcript below, the headings and figures in bold-face type indicate the general organization of the original document.

The annotation ‘ex’ appears everywhere throughout the document, indicating that individual entries and figures were checked against the supporting documents. In many cases, it appears in the margin at the head of a section, indicating that all the entries in that section have been checked. Although these very numerous annotations are something of a distraction, they have been retained in the transcript in order to indicate the scrupulous care with which the account was prepared. Every entry and every figure appears to have been checked after the account was written up.

The annotation ‘per warr & sol per acq’ (and variations) also appears very frequently, indicating that individual entries were checked against the warrants authorizing payment and the signed acquittances acknowledging receipt of payment. The Latin abbreviations used in those annotations have not been expanded in the transcript below.

Although the majority of the warrants listed below authorize payment to persons carrying messages for the Queen’s service, the entries also include a Privy Council warrant dated 15 March 1595 to William Kempe, William Shakespeare (1564-1616) and Richard Burbage (1568-1619), servants to the Lord Chamberlain, for two comedies or interludes performed at court before the Queen on St. Stephen’s Day [=26 December], and Innocents’ Day [=28 December] 1594. The entry is in bold-face type in the transcript below for ease of reference.

For the Pipe Office copy of the entry authorizing payment to Kempe, Shakespeare and Burbage, see TNA E 351/542, m. 207d on this website.

There is also an entry mentioning a masque ‘made by the gentlemen of the Inns of Court’:

To him more for th’ allowance of himself and the same number of Yeomen and [image 10] Grooms for making ready the hall in Whitehall against the masque made by the gentlemen of the Inns of Court by the space of 4 days in the month of February 1594 [=1595], as appeareth by a bill thereof signed by the Lord Chamberlain, £4 6s 8d.
