

SUMMARY: The document below is the Prerogative Court of Canterbury copy of the will, dated 12 September and 6 October 1542 and proved 11 March 1543, of John Neville (17 November 1493 – 2 March 1543), 3rd Baron Latimer, whose first wife was Dorothy de Vere (d. 7 February 1527), daughter of Sir George Vere and Margaret Stafford, and sister and co-heir of John de Vere (14 August 1499 - 14 July 1526), 14th Earl of Oxford.

FAMILY BACKGROUND AND SIBLINGS

Testator's paternal grandparents

The testator was the grandson of Sir Henry Neville, slain at the Battle of Edgecote on 26 July 1469, and Joan Bourghchier (d. 7 October 1470). They had two sons and one daughter:

-Richard Neville (c.1468 – before 28 December 1530), 2nd Baron Latimer, the testator's father (see below).

-Thomas Neville (d.1546), esquire, who married firstly Anne Westerdale, by whom he had no issue; secondly Lettice Harcourt, the daughter of John Harcourt (d. 26 June 1485), esquire, by Anne Norreys, by whom he had one son, Richard Neville, and three daughters, including Ellen Neville, wife of Kenelm Bucke; and thirdly Anne Greville, by whom he had a son, John Neville.

Lettice Harcourt and her three sisters were co-heiresses c.1509 to their brother, Sir Robert Harcourt (see above), standard bearer to Henry VII at the Battle of Bosworth in 1485. See Richardson, Douglas, Magna Carta Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. III, pp. 2-3; and Harcourt, Edward William ed., The Harcourt Papers, (Oxford: Parker, 1880), pp. 43, 70-2 at:

-Joan Neville, wife of Sir James Radcliffe.

Testator's parents

For the testator's father, Richard Neville, 2nd Baron Latimer, see the ODNB:

Neville, John, third Baron Latimer (1493–1543), nobleman, was born on 17 November 1493, the eldest son and heir of Richard Neville (c.1467–1530), second baron, and Anne, daughter and heir of Sir Humphrey Stafford of Grafton, Worcestershire, and Blatherwyk, Northamptonshire. The poet William Neville was one of his many younger brothers; William's dealings with a magician in 1532 hint at tensions between John and himself. By 1520 John Neville had married Dorothy, daughter of Sir George de Vere and sister of John de Vere, fourteenth earl of Oxford. Dorothy died on 7 February 1527 and on 20 June 1528 her husband obtained a licence to marry Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Musgrave of Hartley, Westmorland, and Edenhall, Cumberland. Finally, in the summer of 1534 he took as his third wife Katherine (1512–1548), daughter of Sir Thomas Parr of Kendal, Westmorland, and widow of Sir Edward Borough. . . . Latimer died in London on 2 March 1543 and was buried in St Paul's Cathedral. In his will, dated 12 September 1542 and proved 15 March 1543, he provided for his wife, family, and servants. His son John inherited the Latimer barony; and, on 12 July 1543, his widow, Katherine, became Henry VIII's sixth wife.

For the testator's mother, Anne Stafford Neville, see Richardson, Douglas, Magna Carta Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. II, pp. 223-4, 386, and the will of John Clopton (c.1422-1497), TNA PROB 11/11/266.

After the death of Anne Stafford, the testator's father married secondly, by licence dated 5 July 1522, Margaret, the widow of Sir James Strangeways (d. 16 December 1521). See Richardson, Douglas, Magna Carta Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. III, p. 3.

Testator's siblings

The testator had five brothers and six sisters:

-William Neville (15 July 1497 – c.1545), who married, as her second husband, Elizabeth Greville, sole daughter and heir of Sir Giles Greville (d. 1 April 1528) by his first wife, whose name is unknown. For further details concerning Sir Giles Greville and his daughter, Elizabeth Greville, see the will of William Clopton (d.1560), TNA PROB 11/43/118.

For William Neville, see the Wikipedia article created by the author of this website, and the ODNB:

Neville, William (b. 1497, d. in or before 1545), poet, was born on 15 July 1497, the second son of Richard Neville, second Baron Latimer (c.1467–1530), and his wife, Anne, daughter of Sir Humphrey Stafford; his brother was John Neville, third Baron Latimer (1493–1543). He married before 1 April 1529, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Giles Greville, with whom he had a son, Richard, and two daughters, Mary and Susan. In his youth Neville may have been in the household of Cardinal Wolsey. . . . In 1532 Neville was accused of treason by one Thomas Wood, who alleged that he had prophesied the death of Henry VIII and claimed that he would become earl of Warwick. . . . He appears to have died in or before 1545, when his estate is known to have been in the possession of his son, Richard. . . . Neville is the author of an allegorical dream vision, 'The Castell of Pleasure', in which a dreamer, Desire, is led by Morpheus to the eponymous castle. . . . Copies survive in editions by Henry Pepwell of 1518 and Wynkyn de Worde, probably of 1530.

As noted above, William Neville had a son and two daughters by his wife, Elizabeth Greville:

(1) Richard Neville (d.1590) of Pedwyn, Worcestershire, and Wyke, Warwickshire, who married Barbara Arden, the daughter of William Arden (d.1545) of Park Hall and his wife, Elizabeth Conway, daughter of Edward Conway and his wife, Anne Burdett, daughter of Richard Burdett. Barbara Arden was the sister of Edward Arden (1533-1583) of Park Hall. After the death of his first cousin, John Neville, 4th Baron Latimer, in 1577, Richard Neville (d.1590) claimed the Latimer barony, as did his son Edmund after him. See G.E.C., The Complete Peerage, Vol. XII, Part II, (London: St Catherine Press, 1959), pp. 560-3; Stopes, Charlotte Carmichael, Shakespeare's Warwickshire Contemporaries, (Stratford Upon Avon: Shakespeare Head Press, 1907), pp. 101, 103, 123-4; and the pedigree of Arden at:

(2) Mary Neville, about whom nothing further is known.

(3) Susan Neville, about whom nothing further is known.

-Sir Thomas Neville of Piggotts Hall in Ardleigh, Essex, who married Mary Tey, one of the four daughters and coheirs of Sir Thomas Tey (c.1483-1540?), the son of Sir Henry Tey (d.1455-1510) and Margaret Greene (d. 24 September 1520), by whom he had a son, Thomas Neville. See Collinson, Patrick, John Craig, Brett Usher, eds., Conferences and Combination Lectures in the Elizabethan Church, 1582-1590, (Woodbridge, Suffolk: The Boydell Press, 2003), pp. 258-9 at:

<https://books.google.ca/books?id=sCrkK2WZ2A4C&pg=PA258>

The senior branch of the family inherited Marks Tey, Brightwell Hall, Bottingham Hall and Peldon; the cadet branch Layer-d-la-Haye and Aldham Hall. The grandson of John Tey II, Sir Thomas Tey (d.1540), a Henrician courtier who was present at the Field of Cloth of Gold, left four daughters, and his patrimony was divided between them. The eldest, Margaret, inherited the Brightwell estate and married Sir John Jermyn [sic]. The order in which the other three were born is not clear but Frances inherited the manor of Peldon and married William Bonham, MP for Maldon in 1539 and subsequently a gentleman pensioner (d.1547 or later). Mary married Sir Thomas Neville 'of Oldehote in Essex' and Elizabeth Sir Marmaduke Neville (1506-1545), fourth son of Richard 2nd Lord Laytmer (1468-1530.). Marmaduke's eldest brother, John 3rd Lord Latymer (d.1543), was the second husband of Katherine Parr, soon to be Henry VIII's sixth queen. Eleanor Neville was the only surviving child of Sir Marmaduke and Elizabeth Tey.

-Marmaduke Neville (1506-1545), who married Elizabeth Tey, another of the four daughters and coheirs of Sir Thomas Tey (c.1483-1540?), the son of Sir Henry Tey (d.1455-1510) and Margaret Greene (d. 24 September 1520), by whom he had a son, Christopher Neville, who died young, and a daughter, Eleanor Neville, who married Thomas Tey, esquire, of Layer de la Haye, Essex. See Collinson, supra.

For Margaret Tey, elder sister of Mary Tey and Elizabeth Tey, see the will of Sir William Fitzwilliam (c.1506 – 3 October 1559), TNA PROB 11/42B/624.

-George Neville, Archdeacon of Carlisle, born 29 July 1509, buried 6 September 1567 at Well, North Yorkshire.

-Christopher Neville.

-Margaret Neville (born 9 March 1495), who married, by papal dispensation dated 22 November 1505, Edward Willoughby (d. November 1517) of Alcester, Warwickshire, son of Robert Willoughby (d. 10 or 11 November 1521), 2nd Baron Willoughby de Broke, by his first wife, Elizabeth Beauchamp, by whom she had three daughters: Elizabeth Willoughby (buried 15 November 1562), who married Sir Fulke Greville (d. 10 November 1559); Anne Willoughby (d.1528); and Blanche Willoughby (d. before 1543), who married Francis Dawtrey. Elizabeth Willoughby and Sir Fulke Greville (d. 10 November 1559) were the grandparents of the courtier Fulke Greville, 1st Baron Brooke, friend of Sir Philip Sidney.

-Dorothy Neville, who married Sir John Dawney (d.1553). See Brydges, Egerton, Collins's Peerage of England, (London: F.C. and J. Rivington, 1812), Vol. VIII, p. 455 at:

<https://books.google.ca/books?id=JFc5AAAAMAAJ&pg=RA1-PA455>

John Dawney, the son of Sir John Dawney and Dorothy Neville, married Elizabeth Roper, the daughter of John Roper (d.1524), Attorney-General to Henry VIII, and Jane Fyneux (d.1544?), daughter and coheir of Sir John Fyneux (d.1525), Chief Justice of the King's Bench. For Sir John Fyneux, see the ODNB entry.

For John Roper (d.1524), see the ODNB entry and his will, dated 27 January 1524, in Archaeologia Cantiana, (London: Kent Archaeological Society, 1859), Vol. II, p. 153:

<https://archive.org/details/archaeologiacant02kent/page/152/mode/2up>

-Elizabeth Neville (born 28 April 1500), who married, before 1531, Sir Christopher Danby (c.1505 – 14 June 1571), of Farnley, North Yorkshire, only son of Sir Christopher Danby (d. 17 March 1518) and Margaret Scrope, daughter of Thomas Scrope (d.1475), 5th Baron Scrope of Masham. They had six sons, Sir Thomas Danby, Christopher Danby, John Danby, James Danby, Marmaduke Danby and William Danby, and eight daughters, Dorothy Danby, who married Sir John Neville; Mary Danby; Joan Danby, who married Roger Meynell, esquire; Margaret Danby, who married Christopher Hopton, esquire; Anne Danby, who married Sir Walter Calverley; Elizabeth Danby, who married Thomas Wentworth, esquire; Magdalen Danby, who married Marmaduke Wyvill; and Margery Danby, who married Christopher Mallory, esquire. It seems likely that Elizabeth Neville's son, William Danby, was the William Danby who served as coroner at the inquest into the death of Christopher Marlowe in 1593. Moreover Elizabeth Neville's daughter, Anne Danby, and her husband, Sir Walter Calverley, were the grandparents of Walter Calverley (d.1605), whose murder of his children is dramatized in A Yorkshire Tragedy, attributed on the title page to William Shakespeare. See the ODNB:

Calverley, William (d. 1572), writer, was born early in the sixteenth century in Yorkshire, the eldest of the three sons of Walter Calverley and Anne Danby, daughter of Sir Christopher Danby of Farnley. It seems that he participated in the Pilgrimage of Grace in the north of England, and his name is found in a muster of Lord Darcy's men taken in 1536. Calverley was imprisoned in the Tower of London for his part in the uprising, and there wrote A Dyalogue Bitwene the Playntife and the Defendaunt, a verse dialogue in which the eponymous plaintiff is made to admit to his errors, and to attest to the justice of his punishment. . . . He died in 1572, and according to the visitation of Yorkshire of 1665–6 had six children, including the murderer Walter Calverley (d. 1605).

-Katherine Neville.

-Susan Neville (1501–c.1560), who married the rebel, Richard Norton (d. 9 April 1585), esquire, the eldest son of John Norton (d.1557) by Anne Radcliffe (d. before 1557). For the testator's brother-in-law, Richard Norton, see the entry in the ODNB:

Norton, Richard [called Old Norton] (d. 1585), rebel, was the eldest son of John Norton (d. 1557) of Norton Conyers in Allertonshire, near Ripon, and the heiress Anne Radcliffe (d. before 1557) of Rylstone in Craven, Yorkshire. The Nortons were a leading Yorkshire family whose heads were commonly JPs, sheriffs, and knights. John Norton was treasurer of the household to Henry Percy, fifth earl of Northumberland (d. 1527), where Richard was brought up. Of age by 1524 and probably already married to Susan Neville (1501–c.1560), daughter of Richard, second Lord Latimer, Richard Norton had close relations with her brother John, Lord Latimer (d. 1542). . . . The Nortons were plotting from 1568, when Richard's son Christopher planned to remove Mary, queen of Scots, from Lord Scrope's custody, and in November 1569 Richard's brother and seven sons, several middle-aged, joined Old Norton (Richard Norton) in the northern rising. . . . The rising was disastrous for the Nortons, their friends, and tenants, many of whom were executed, dispossessed, and exiled.

MARRIAGES AND CHILDRENTestator's first marriage

The testator married firstly Dorothy de Vere (d. 7 February 1527), daughter of Sir George Vere and Margaret Stafford, and sister and co-heir of John de Vere (14 August 1499 - 14 July 1526), 14th Earl of Oxford. For the will of the testator's father-in-law, Sir George Vere (died c.1503), see TNA PROB 11/13/444.

By Dorothy de Vere, the testator had two surviving children:

* Margaret Neville (d.1545). See her will, TNA PROB 11/31/94.

* John Neville (d. 22 April 1577), 4th Baron Latimer, who married Lucy Somerset (c.1524 - 23 February 1583), the daughter of Henry Somerset (1495/6–1549), 2nd Earl of Worcester, by his second wife, Elizabeth Browne (c.1502–1565), daughter of Sir Anthony Browne (d.1506). Lucy Somerset was a first cousin of Anthony Browne (1528-1592), 1st Viscount Montague, grandfather of Henry Wriothesley (1573-1624), 3rd Earl of Southampton, to whom Shakespeare dedicated Venus and Adonis and The Rape of Lucrece. For her will, see TNA PROB 11/65/170.

By Henry Somerset, Elizabeth Browne was also the mother of William Somerset (1526/7-1589), 3rd Earl of Worcester, who married Christian North (b.1533), the daughter of Edward North (c.1504-1564), 1st Baron North. Their son, Edward Somerset (c.1550-1628), 4th Earl of Worcester, married Elizabeth Hastings at Whitehall on the same day Oxford married Anne Cecil. See ERO D/DRg2/24:

Edward de Vere, Earl of Oxenford, did the 16th day of December 1571 anno xiiijto Regine Elizabeth marry the Lady his wife named Anne Cecil, one of the daughters of Sir William Cecil, knight, Lord of Burghley, at the court then being at Whitehall by Westminster. The same day, year and place the Lord Herbert, son and heir of the Earl of Worcester, did marry the Lady Hastings, sister to Henry, Earl of Huntingdon.

For the marriage of Henry Somerset, 2nd Earl of Worcester, and Elizabeth Browne, see Richardson, Douglas, Plantagenet Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. I, p. 180 and Vol. III, pp. 235-6, and entries for members of the Browne and Somerset families in the ODNB.

The lands entailed by the testator to his son and heir, John Neville (d. 22 April 1577), 4th Baron Latimer, who died without surviving male heirs, were eventually divided among the latter's four daughters and co-heirs:

-Katherine Neville (d. 28 October 1596), who married firstly Henry Percy (c.1532-1585), 8th Earl of Northumberland, and secondly Francis Fitton (d. 17 June 1608), for whose will see TNA PROB 11/112/118.

-Dorothy Neville (1548-1609), who married Oxford's brother-in-law, Thomas Cecil (1542-1632/3), 1st Earl of Exeter.

-Lucy Neville (c.1549-1608), who married Sir William Cornwallis (c.1551-1611), who purchased Oxford's lease of Fisher's Folly. For a discussion of Oxford's interest in Fisher's Folly, see the will of Jasper Fisher, TNA PROB 11/61/541. For correspondence between Sir Thomas Cornwallis (1518/19-1604) and Lord Burghley concerning the purchase of Oxford's lease of Fisher's Folly, see CP 166/80 and CP 17/60. For the will of Sir William Cornwallis, see TNA PROB 11/118/441.

Anne Cornwallis (d.1635), one of the daughters of Lucy Neville and William Cornwallis, has been identified as the 'Anne Cornwaleys' of the anthology of sixteenth century poetry known as the Cornwallis-Lysons manuscript, now in the Folger Library (Folger MS V.a.89). See the ODNB entry for Anne Cornwallis.

Elizabeth Cornwallis, another of the daughters of Lucy Neville and Sir William Cornwallis, married Sir William Sandys (c.1575 – 28 October 1628), son of Sir Walter Sandys (d.1609) by Mabel Wriothesley, aunt of Henry Wriothesley (1573-1624), 3rd Earl of Southampton, to whom Shakespeare dedicated Venus and Adonis and The Rape of Lucrece. Elizabeth Cornwallis and Sir William Sandys were married at the house of her father, Sir William Cornwallis, in St Botolph's, Bishopsgate (i.e. Oxford's former mansion), on 23 November 1592. See the Cornwallis pedigree in The Private Correspondence of Jane Lady Cornwallis, 1613-1644, (London: S. & J. Bentley, 1842), p. xxxvii at:

-Elizabeth Neville (1545x50-1630), who married Sir John Danvers (1540-1594) of Dauntsey. Their sons, Sir Charles Danvers (c.1568-1601) and Sir Henry Danvers (1573-1644), were 'among the closest friends' of Henry Wriothesley, 3rd Earl of Southampton, and after a quarrel in 1594 in which the Danvers brothers killed Henry Long, Southampton 'hid them from the authorities' at Whitley Lodge, and 'ensured their escape into exile across the channel'. They were eventually pardoned by the Queen, and returned to England in 1598. See the ODNB entries for Sir Charles Danvers and Sir Henry Danvers.

In 1601 Sir Charles Danvers was attainted and executed for his part in the Essex rebellion, as a result of which the lands which he inherited from both his father and his mother escheated to the Crown. Several of Oxford's extant letters describe his involvement on the Queen's behalf in the Danvers escheat case, and the lands which had descended to Sir Charles Danvers from the Lords Latimer are specifically referred to in a letter written by Oxford to his brother-in-law, Sir Robert Cecil, in January 1602 (see CP 181/99).

For the marriage of the testator's son, John Neville (d. 22 April 1577), and Lucy Somerset, see also Richardson, Douglas, Plantagenet Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. I, p. 180 and Vol. III, pp. 235-6.

Testator's second marriage

The testator married secondly, by licence dated 20 June 1528, Elizabeth Musgrave, the daughter of Sir Edward Musgrave of Hartley, Westmorland, and Edenhall, Cumberland.

Testator's third marriage

The testator married thirdly, in the summer of 1534, Katherine Parr, widow of Sir Edward Burgh, for whom see the will of Oxford's foe, Thomas Knyvet (1546 – 27 July 1622), TNA PROB 11/140/169. After the testator's death, Katherine Parr became the sixth wife of Henry VIII.

TESTATOR'S LANDS

In the will below the testator appoints his nephew, John Gascoigne, as steward of his lands at Nun Monkton and Hammerton for life. This appointment suggests that John may have been the son of the testator's previous steward, Sir William Gascoigne. See the biographies of Sir William Gascoigne (c.1485-1540) and his son, Sir John Gascoigne (c.1510-1568), father of the poet, George Gascoigne, at:

<http://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1509-1558/member/gascoigne-sir-john-1510-68>.

See also the entry for the poet George Gascoigne in the ODNB:

Gascoigne, George (1534/5?–1577), author and soldier, was the eldest of three children of Sir John Gascoigne (b. in or before 1510, d. 1568) of Cardington, Bedfordshire, and his wife, Margaret (d. 17 Oct 1575), daughter of Sir Robert Scargill of Thorpe Hall, Richmond, Yorkshire. Knighted in 1541, Sir John served as sheriff for Bedfordshire and Buckinghamshire, 1542–3; MP for Bedfordshire, 1542, 1553, and 1558; commissioner of the musters, 1546; justice of the peace, 1546 until his death; and almoner at the coronations of Edward VI and of Mary. Gascoigne's grandfather, Sir William Gascoigne (d. 1540) of Cardington, the namesake of his great-grandfather, the chief justice, served as treasurer of Cardinal Wolsey's household, 1523–9; MP for Bedfordshire, 1529 and 1536; justice of the peace in several counties; and almoner at the coronations of Henry VIII and of Anne Boleyn.

For the testator's manor of Nun Monkton, which eventually descended to his granddaughter, Katherine Neville (1545/6-1596), and through her second marriage, to Francis Fitton of Binfield, Berkshire, see Poole, George Ayliffe, Churches of Yorkshire, Vol. I, (Leeds: T.W. Green, 1844), pp. 96-7, at:

At one time the testator leased a mansion near the Charterhouse in London:

'Charterhouse Square area: Introduction; Charterhouse Square', in Survey of London: Volume 46, South and East Clerkenwell, ed. Philip Temple (London, 2008), pp. 242-265. British History Online <http://www.british-history.ac.uk/survey-london/vol46/pp242-265> [accessed 24 March 2016]

By contrast, ownership of the buildings surrounding the yard became fragmented after the Dissolution. At least one of the larger properties here had already been leased by the priory to laymen. In 1532 Sir John Neville, Lord Latimer, took a lease of a mansion at the east end of the churchyard, formerly held by the Abbot of Pershore. (fn. 8) The Tudor fragments that survived at No. 10 Charterhouse Square until the Blitz probably belonged to this house. Latimer married Katherine Parr—after his death in 1543 Henry VIII's sixth queen—and her brother William Parr is also supposed to have lived in the yard. Other members of court circles among tenants or lessees of buildings hereabouts in the aftermath of the Dissolution included Sir John Williams, Keeper of the King's Jewels; Robert Burgoyne, one of the auditors of the Court of Augmentations; Bartholomew Westby, Baron of the Exchequer; Sir Arthur Darcy, one of the King's servants; and John Leland, the topographer and 'King's Antiquary', recorded at a tenement adjoining Lord Latimer's mansion between 1538 and 1546.

After the testator's death, it appears the mansion was owned by Sir Arthur Darcy (d.1561), who leased it to the testator's son, John Neville (d.1577), 4th Baron Latimer.
