

SUMMARY: The document below is the Prerogative Court of Canterbury copy of the will, dated 24 August 1558 and proved 11 December 1560, of Eleanor (nee Browne) Fogge Kempe, grandmother of Alice (nee Kempe) Hales Lee (d.1592), the dedicatee of Robert Greene's Menaphon (1589), to which Thomas Nashe contributed a preface. For the will, proved 7 May 1590, of Alice (nee Kempe) Hales Lee's first husband, Sir James Hales (d.1589), see TNA PROB 11/75/265.

The testatrix was a descendant of Robert de Vere, 3rd Earl of Oxford, through her father, Robert Browne, esquire, of Luddenham, Kent. Robert Browne was the fifth son of Sir Thomas Browne (1402 – beheaded 29 July 1460), Treasurer of the Household to Henry VI, by Eleanor Arundel, daughter of Sir Thomas Arundel and Joan Moyne. Hitchin-Kemp states that the testatrix' mother was Margaret Mallet, the daughter of Sir William Mallet. However this identification of the testatrix' mother is open to doubt as Robert Browne left a will dated 9 December 1509 in which he names his wife, Anne, and daughter, Eleanor, and requests burial in Faversham Abbey, Kent, 'before the rood of pity', or else in the chapel of Arundel College next to the body of Thomas, sometime Earl of Arundel. Robert Browne was the brother of Sir Anthony Browne (d.1506), who, by his second wife, Lucy Neville (d.1534), was the great-grandfather of Mary Browne (c.1552-1607), mother of Henry Wriothesley, 3rd Earl of Southampton, the dedicatee of Shakespeare's Venus and Adonis (1593), and The Rape of Lucrece (1594), and of Thomas Nashe's The Unfortunate Traveller (1594). By his first wife, Sir Anthony Browne (d.1506) had a daughter, Anne Browne, who was the first wife of Charles Brandon (c.1484-1545), Duke of Suffolk, who married, as his fourth wife Katherine Willoughby (1519-1580), later the mother-in-law of Oxford's sister, Mary de Vere (d.1624).

Another brother, Sir George Browne (d.1483), married Elizabeth Paston, and had a son, Sir Matthew Browne (d. 6 August 1557) of West Betchworth, who married Frideswide Guildford, the daughter of Sir Richard Guildford (c.1450-1506) and his first wife, Anne Pympe. Frideswide's sister, Mary Guildford, married Christopher Kempe (1485-1512), the elder brother of the testatrix' second husband, Sir William Kempe (1487-1539). Sir Edward Guildford (c.1479-1534), the brother of Mary and Frideswide, married his daughter Jane Guildford to his ward, John Dudley (1504-1553), Duke of Northumberland. They were the parents of Queen Elizabeth's favourite, Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester.

Sir Matthew Browne (d. 6 August 1557) and Frideswide Guildford were the grandparents of Sir Thomas Browne (d. 9 February 1597), married Mabel Fitzwilliam, by whom he was the father of Sir Matthew Browne (died c.1603), one of the trustees of Nicholas Brend (d. 12 October 1601), who leased the ground on which the Globe was built by lease dated 21 February 1599 to Richard Burbage, Cuthbert Burbage, William Kempe, Augustine Phillips, Thomas Pope, John Heminges and William Shakespeare of Stratford upon Avon (see TNA REQ 4/1/2). Sir Thomas Browne (d. 9 February 1597), signed Lady Russell's petition against James Burbage's Blackfriars theatre.

For the Browne family of Betchworth, descendants of King John, see the ODNB article on Sir Richard Guildford (d.1506) and his will, TNA PROB 11/17/381; the will of Nicholas Brend (c. 1560 – 12 October 1601), TNA PROB 11/98/348; the will, dated 2 August 1603 and proved 19 April 1608, TNA PROB 11/111/273, of Sir Matthew Browne (died c.1603); Richardson, Douglas, Plantagenet Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. I, pp. 179-80, and 369-71; Richardson, Douglas, Magna Carta Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. I, p. 341; the Browne and Guildford pedigrees in Burke, John and Bernard Burke, A Genealogical and Heraldic History of the Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies of England, Ireland and Scotland, 2nd ed. The testatrix married firstly, before 9 December 1509, Sir Thomas Fogge (d. 16 August 1512), esquire, Sergeant Porter of Calais, son of Sir John Fogge (c.1417-1490) by his second wife, Alice Haute, by whom she had two daughters:

* Anne Fogge, who married firstly William Scott (d. 5 June 1536), eldest son and heir of Sir John Scott (d. 7 October 1533) and Anne Pympe, and secondly a husband surnamed Pollard. She is mentioned as 'my daughter Pollard' in the will below, and as 'my sister Dame Anne Pollard' in the will of her brother-in-law, Sir Reynold Scott (c.1511 - 16 December 1554), dated 4 September 1554 and proved 13 February 1556, TNA PROB 11/37/539. For further details concerning her, see the will of Sir Reynold Scott.

* Alice Fogge (c.1508-c.1583), who married firstly Edward Scott (c.1478 - November 1535), second son of Sir William Scott (d. 24 August 1524), Comptroller of the Household to Henry VII and Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, and secondly, by 1543, Sir Robert Oxenbridge (1509 – 17 November 1574), named by the testatrix as an executor in the will below. By her first husband, Alice (nee Fogge) is said to have had two sons, William Scott (imprisoned in the White Lion as a Catholic recusant in 1582), and Thomas, and two daughters, Jane and Anne. By her second husband Alice (nee Fogge) may have had as many as fourteen children. The testatrix married secondly Sir William Kempe (1487 – 28 January 1539) of Olantigh near Wye in Kent. In the will below she names five sons: Sir Thomas, Anthony, Francis, Edward, John and George. For details concerning the testatrix' sons by her second husband, see his will, TNA PROB 11/27/500.

The testatrix' five daughters by Sir Thomas Kempe were:

* Emmeline Kempe, who married, before 1537, Sir Reynold Scott (c.1511 - 16 December 1554) of Scott's Hall in Smeeth, Kent by whom she had one son, Sir Thomas Scott (c.1537 – 30 December 1594), who married Elizabeth Baker, daughter of Sir John Baker (c.1489–1558), Speaker of the House of Commons, and two daughters, Katherine Scott, who married John Baker (c.1531-c.1604), son of Sir John Baker (c.1489–1558), Speaker of the House of Commons, by whom she was the mother of the chronicler, Sir Richard Baker (c.1568–1645), and Anne Scott, who married Walter Mayney (d.1577) of Spilsill manor, Staplehurst, Kent. Emmeline Kempe died before 1542, at which date Sir Reynold Scott married secondly, Mary Tuke, the daughter of Sir Brian Tuke (d.1545) of Layer Marney, Essex, by Grissell Boughton (d.1538), daughter of Nicholas Boughton of Woolwich. See Richardson, Douglas, Magna Carta Ancestry, 2nd ed., 2011, Vol. IV, pp. 1-3; the ODNB articles on Sir John Baker (c.1489-1558), Sir Richard Baker (c.1568-1645), and Sir Brian Tuke; and the History of Parliament entry for John Baker (c.1531-c.1604) at:

* Cecily Kempe, who married firstly, before 1558, William Latham, and secondly William Strangman (d. 17 December 1573) of Hadleigh Castle, Essex, for whom see his will, TNA PROB 11/56/319; and King, H.W., 'James Strangman, Esq., of Hadleigh, an Eminent Essex Antiquary of the time of Queen Elizabeth and James I', Transactions of the Essex Archaeological Society, (Cochester, 1863), Vol. II, pp. 139-46 at p. 143:

* Faith Kempe, who married Francis Neale of Lancashire.

* Mary Kempe, who married Nicholas Boughton, son of Sir Edward Boughton (d.1550) of Plumstead, Kent. For the will of Nicholas Boughton, dated 30 March 1559 and proved 9 February 1560, see TNA PROB 11/43/127.

* Margaret Kempe, who married Sir George Fogge.

The testatrix refers in the will below to 'my daughter Anne Scott', who would appear to have been the testatrix' granddaughter, Anne Scott.

It is possible that the comedian Will Kempe was a member of the testatrix' family. The comedian was in the service of the Earl of Leicester, who was distantly related to the Kempes of Olantigh. See Adams, Simon, Household Accounts and Disbursement Books of Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, (Cambridge: Royal Historical Society, 1995), p. 371 at:

<https://books.google.ca/books?id=Ua9m6c488kcC&pg=PA371&lpg=PA371&dq=%22Household%22+%22Leicester%22+%22Kempe%22&source=bl&ots=0u48OBQLgA&sig=csrxqmmVSsT52g1Va0U10zE-IDA&hl=en&sa=X&ei=4SBmVZfOJ4PEogSp8oCQAw&ved=0CCkQ6AEwAg#v=onepage&q=%22Household%22%20%22Leicester%22%20%22Kempe%22&f=false>.

The comedian is described in TNA KB 27/1454/1, rot. 692 as a gentleman ('William Kempe, late of London, gentleman, deceased'), which suggests the possibility that he could have been a member of the family of Kempe of Olantigh. Moreover during a visit to Rome in 1601 the comedian met with Sir Anthony Shirley (1565–1636?), son of the testatrix' granddaughter, Anne Kempe Shirley, which again suggests the possibility that he was related to the Kempes of Olantigh. From the ODNB:

Sherley [Shirley], Sir Thomas (c.1542–1612), politician and courtier, was the eldest of three children born to William Sherley (c.1498–1551), a gentleman of Wiston, Sussex, and his wife, Mary, daughter of Thomas Isley of Sundridge, Kent. Nothing is known of his education; he did not, as sometimes claimed, matriculate as a fellow commoner from Queens' College, Cambridge, in 1561. Sherley married, about 1559, Anne (c.1542–1623), daughter of Sir Thomas Kempe of Wye, Kent. They had twelve children, including three adventurous sons: Sir Thomas Sherley (1564–1633/4), Sir Anthony Sherley (1565–1636?), and Robert Shirley (c.1581–1628). Herbert referred to the Sherleys as 'A family not needing hyperboles' (Shirley, 234).

*Kemp, William (fl. 1585–1602), actor, was the most important stage clown working in the late Elizabethan period. . . . During the ensuing year [=1601] Kemp made his way into Germany and Italy, eventually arriving at Rome, where he met the English traveller Sir Anthony Shirley, an encounter dramatized after his death in Day, Rowley, and Wilkins's play about the Shirley family, The Travailes of the Three English Brothers (1607).*

According to Emerson the testatrix:

served in Katherine Parr's household from 1543-1547 and was one of the longest serving and most loyal of Mary Tudor's ladies. She was part of Mary's household by 1547 and was still there in 1558 when the Queen died.

See <http://www.kateemersonhistoricals.com/TudorWomenBrooke-Bu.htm>.

The testatrix' Catholic sympathies are evident in the will, both in her directions regarding her burial and in the fact that she names as her supervisor William Roper of Eltham (1495-1577), the husband of Margaret More (1505-1564), the daughter of Sir Thomas More (1478-1535), Lord Chancellor and martyr. The testatrix' wish to be buried in the Chapel of the Savoy may have been carried out, as Strype records a memorial to her there; see Martin, Charles Trice, Memorials of the Savoy, (London: Macmillan, 1878), p. 226.

The manor of Morris-Court in Bapchild, Kent, mentioned in the will had been owned by the testatrix' grandfather, Sir Thomas Browne (1402 – beheaded 29 July 1460), and had likely descended to her through her father. The manor of Chelworth mentioned in the will is also mentioned in the will of her son, George Kempe. For the wills of the testatrix' sons George Kempe and Anthony Kempe, see TNA PROB 11/72/479 and TNA PROB 11/94/3.

According to Emerson:

From 1547-51, Eleanor was engaged in a lawsuit in Chancery against her cousin, Sir Matthew Browne, over land in Kent.

The cousin with whom the testatrix was engaged in this lawsuit was Sir Matthew Browne (d. 6 August 1557), mentioned above.

LM: D{omi}ne Elianore Kempe

[f. 457v] In the name of God, Amen.
