

SUMMARY: The document below is the Prerogative Court of Canterbury copy of the will, dated 20 March 1593 and proved 14 February 1599, of Margaret Bromley (d. 11 August 1598), wife of Sir Richard Newport (d. September 1570), owner of a copy of Hall's Chronicle containing annotations thought to have been made by Shakespeare. The volume was Loan 61 in the British Library until 2007, was subsequently on loan to Lancaster University Library until 2010, and is now in the hands of a trustee, Lady Hesketh. According to the Wikipedia entry for Sir Richard Newport, the annotated Hall's Chronicle is now at Eton College, Windsor. See:

Newport's copy of his chronicle, containing annotations sometimes attributed to William Shakespeare, is now in the Library at Eton College, Windsor.

FAMILY BACKGROUND

The testatrix was the only daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Bromley (d. 15 May 1555), Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, by Isabel Lyster, daughter of Richard Lyster of Rowton.

The testatrix' second cousin, Sir Thomas Bromley (c.1530-1587), was Queen Elizabeth's Lord Chancellor and Keeper of the Great Seal. Sir Thomas Bromley was one of five trustees who were parties to an indenture entered into by Oxford on 30 January 1575, just prior to his departure for the continent (see ERO D/DRg2/25).

MARRIAGE AND ISSUE

The testatrix married Sir Richard Newport. For their children, see his will, TNA PROB 11/53/456.

At the time the testatrix made her will, her daughter, Mary Newport, was married to William Gratwood. She later married, as her second husband, Ralph Sneyd, the uncle of Oxford's second wife, Elizabeth Trentham, and Oxford's trustee in documents entered into at the time of the marriage and shortly thereafter.

The testatrix' daughter, Magdalen Newport, was the mother of the poet George Herbert, and a friend of the poet John Donne, who was apparently related to Oxford through a mutual ancestor, Sir John Don.

A monument at Wroxeter depicts the testatrix, her husband, and their four sons and four daughters. See Transactions of the Shropshire Archeological and Natural History Society, 4th Series, Volume VII, 1918-1919 (Vol. XL), (Shrewsbury: Adnitt and Naunton), pp. 136-7 at:

In witness whereof to this my last will and testament I have put my hand and seal the twentieth of March in the presence of William Leake, my servant, anno supradict{o}.
