

SUMMARY: The document below is the Prerogative Court of Canterbury copy of the will, dated 6 and 7 August 1599 and proved 12 September 1601, of Oxford's brother-in-law, Peregrine Bertie (1555 - 26 June 1601), Lord Willoughby de Eresby.

FAMILY BACKGROUND

Testator's parents

The testator was the only son of Richard Bertie (1517–1582) and his wife, Katherine (nee Willoughby) Brandon Bertie (1519–1580), Duchess of Suffolk, daughter of William Willoughby (d. 19 October 1526), 11th Baron Willoughby de Eresby, and his wife, Maria de Salinas. The testator's mother was twelfth Baron Willoughby de Eresby in her own right, and the widow of Charles Brandon (c.1484–1545), 1st Duke of Suffolk. See the ODNB entries for Charles Brandon, 1st Duke of Suffolk; Katherine, Duchess of Suffolk; and Richard Bertie.

Testator's siblings

The testator's only sister, Susan Bertie (b.1554), married firstly, Reynold [Reginald] Grey (d. 17 March 1572/3), 8th Earl of Kent, and secondly, on 30 September 1581 at Stenigot, Lincolnshire, without the Queen's permission, Sir John Wingfield (d. 21 June 1596), son of Richard Wingfield (1529–1591) by Mary Hardwick, sister of Bess of Hardwick. See the ODNB entries for Sir John Wingfield and

After Sir John Wingfield's death at Cadiz, the testator's sister, Susan (nee Bertie) Grey Wingfield, was left in straightened financial circumstances. From the ODNB:

Wingfield left no will and numerous debts. His widow renounced the administration of his estate to William Browne of London, a creditor, and in September 1596 told Sir Robert Cecil, principal secretary, that she had been living on credit for seven years, had sold all her jewels and plate, owed tradesmen more than £900, had only an annuity of £70 during her lifetime for herself and her son, and that upon receiving news of Wingfield's death 'had not one penny in my house ... to buy meat either for myself and my child, till her Majesty, most like a gracious princess, hearing of my misery, sent me xl pound' (Salisbury MSS, 6.365–6). On 9 July 1597 she was granted an annuity of £100 for herself and her son; she was still alive in 1611.

It appears that before the making of his will, the testator had give his sister a life estate in Willoughby Rents in his London mansion in the Barbican. In his will he also bequeaths an annuity of £20 to her son, Peregrine Wingfield:

And further I give to [my son], Peregrine Bertie, all my messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments with their appurtenances called or known by the name of Willoughby

Rents situate and being in Barbican and Golding Lane near London or in either of them, to have & enjoy the same after the death of my sister, the Lady Susan, Countess of Kent, to him, the said Peregrine Bertie, and the heirs males of his body lawfully begotten, the remainder to the right heirs of me, the said Lord Willoughby, forever.

MARRIAGE AND ISSUE

The testator married Oxford's sister, Mary de Vere (d.1624), by whom he had five sons and a daughter mentioned in the will below:

* Robert Bertie (16 December 1582 - 23 October 1642), 1st Earl of Lindsey, for whom see the ODNB entry:

While touring Italy [in 1602] the new Lord Willoughby was urged by a friend to consider marriage to Dorothy, daughter of George, fourth earl of Huntingdon, an approach which he ungraciously rebuffed, and not even the offer of a £3000 dowry would change his mind. Some time after he returned to England in 1604 Willoughby concluded a match with Elizabeth Montagu (bap. 1586, d. 1654), daughter of Edward Montagu of Boughton, a wealthy Northamptonshire landowner who was ennobled in 1621. . . .

He bequeathed to his eldest son, Montague Bertie (1607/8–1666), debts amounting to £13,438. His widow, who bore him nine sons and five daughters, survived until 30 November 1654.

For George Hastings, 4th Earl of Huntingdon, see also TNA SP 14/3/77, ff. 134-5.

* Henry Bertie of Lound (d. 21 November 1655). See Maddison, supra, p. 130.

* Roger Bertie.

* Katherine Bertie (d. 15 February 1611), who married Sir Lewis Watson (bap. 1584, d. 1653), Lord Rockingham. He erected a monument to the testator in 1612 in Spilsby church.

Mary de Vere is not mentioned in the will below; it appears she and the testator had separated before 20 April 1600 (see the entry for Willoughby in The Complete Peerage, p. 678).

OTHER PERSONS MENTIONED IN THE WILL

The testator's executors were Edward Zouche (b. 6 June 1556, d. 18 August 1625), 11th Baron Zouche of Harringworth, Northamptonshire; Rorbert Rich (1559?–1619), 1st Earl of Warwick; Sir Dru Drury (1531/2–1617); and Sir John Peyton (1544–1630).

For further details of the testator's career, see the ODNB entry.

RM: T{estamentum} Peregrim Bertye milit{is} D{omi}ni Willoughbie

In the name of the Blessed Divine Trinity in Persons and of Omnipotent Unity in Godhead, who created, redeemed and sanctified me, whom I steadfastly believe will glorify this sinful, corruptible & fleshly body with eternal happiness by a joyful resurrection at the general judgment, when by his incomprehensible justice and mercy, having satisfied for my sinful soul and stored it up in his heavenly treasure, his almighty voice shall call all flesh to be joined together with the soul, to everlasting comfort or discomfort, in that holy name, I, Peregrine Bertie, knight, Lord Willoughby of Willoughby, Becke and Eresby, in perfect health and remembrance, and considering the frailty of man and the uncertainty how short and evil his days be, and intending to establish and dispose these worldly benefits that God hath lent me to the comfort and advantage of such children as God hath b[less]ed me withal, hoping that they, my said children, will nourish and maintain all brotherly kindness, love and affection between themselves, considering the misery division bringeth in all estates of this hateful world, still to the worse declining, now I, the said Lord Willoughby, do make and declare this my last will and testament as followeth, and hereby do revoke and disannul all other wills heretofore by me made whatsoever, commending my soul to God and my body to the earth, to be buried decently in the parish church of Spilsby in the county of Lincoln by the good discretion of my executor hereafter named, observing Christian conveniency and avoiding superfluous charge:

I will and appoint that all such debts as any manner of ways shall be owing by me at the time of my decease, if the same may well appear unto mine executor, shall be well and truly paid and satisfied by him out of the rents and profits of such lands and in such sort as hereafter shall be limited and declared; to perform payment unto him and for him of four thousand pounds, which sum is intended for the portion in marriage of the said Katherine, my daughter, if the said marriage be solemnized and other purposes and agreements performed, and whereas in non-accomplishment of them the said Lord Sheffield standeth bound by recognizance acknowledged before Sir William Webbe, knight, Mayor of the Staple, & (blank) Croke, Recorder of London, in the nature of a statute staple unto me, with defeasance for repayment thereof, I will and appoint that if the said marriage be not betwixt the said Charles and the said Katherine solemnized, that the said four thousand pounds shall be unto the said Katherine to be paid unto her at her age of seventeen years or day of marriage, which shall first happen, so as in her said marriage and choice of her husband she be directed and guided by such as I do appoint by this my will to be assistant to mine executor about the execution thereof during her nonage, or by the most of them, or by such of them as shall survive the others;

Moreover I do in most humble and dutiful manner desire her most gracious Majesty that in some respect of my loyal and ready heart always to do her all faithful service, but chiefly in respect of her commiseration and pity towards the distressed estate of my comfortless children, that it would please her Majesty of her ample and royal bounty to vouchsafe these gracious favours and comforts as to grant to such as I commit the education of my son and heir his wardship of body to his use, and one lease of her Majesty's third part of my lands during his nonage, whereby the purpose of this my will may be the more speedily performed in the payment of my debts and other things executed, whereby her Majesty shall most royally respect my long and affectionate service towards her;

And for a small token or remembrance of that loyalty and duty which always I have observed towards her Majesty, I do give her and in all duty do remember her with a cup of gold to the value of a hundred pounds, either else I will that the said sum of one hundred pounds shall be bestowed by mine executor upon some jewel or other thing to be presented to her Majesty such as may best content her and best represent the loyalty of my heart, dying as it always lived towards her, which simple and small remembrance I do most humbly desire to allow and accept of, and to pardon my presumption, and to grant my petition touching the wardship of my child, desiring instantly the said Edward, Lord Zouche, Robert, Lord Rich, and the two knights to have care of the education and placing of my children till they attain to their limited age or marriage day;

Item, I give to the said Edward, Lord Zouche, Robert, Lord Rich, and the two knights, to every of them a great horse, a gelding or a mare at their own choice, and a cup of twenty pounds' price;

Further I constitute, make and ordain my said son, Robert Bertie, to be sole executor of this my last will and testament, most earnestly desiring him and straightly charging him truly to perform and execute the same according to my good meaning and according to my especial trust and confidence reposed in him;

And I do appoint my said honourable good Lords the Lord Zouche and the Lord Rich, and my trusty and loving friends, Sir Dru Drury and Sir John Peyton, knights, and the survivors or survivor of them to be assisting to my said son, Robert, and to administer in his behalf until his such age as by the ecclesiastical laws he may take upon him to deal as my executor;

And of this my last will and testament I do ordain and desire the right honourable Sir Robert Cecil, knight, to be the only supervisor, to whom I give two of my best horses at his election and choice.

Berwick, the seventh of August, 1599. P. Willoughby. Signed, sealed and delivered and the four-and-fiftieth line razed before the ensealing and delivery hereof in the presence of Daniel Wyghte, Henry Valentyne.

LM: In paper annexed to my will written all with his own hand in Roman letters.

Having by the goodness of God disposed in my will above-written of my state to such behoofs as I conceived best, I have thought to annex this schedule to the same will for the direction of bestowing of such part of my goods as I leave not to my heir:

First, therefore, I give to my son, Peregrine, seventeen pieces of hangings I brought out of the Low Countries with me now at Berwick, a carnation cloth of silver, bed, chair, stool and long cushion belonging to it;

Item, I give him a watchet damask canopy with six cushions and a chair, and a fair watchet quilt, the inside yellow;

Item, I give him a yellow velvet bed with the counterpoint of the same, but the chair old, of the same stuff;

Item, I give him a watchet field-bed embroidered with hair-coloured velvet, and a coverlet to the same with all the appurtenances;

The rest of my hangings and stuff at Berwick brought from London and Eresby to be safely sent back to the same places for the behoof of my eldest son, and all such plate and silver vessel as I have, I leave to my said eldest son, Robert, but the ring with the diamond which the French King gave me when I served him in France I bequeath to my son, Peregrine, with a charge upon my blessing to keep it to him and his heirs;

Likewise I leave my son, Robert, for a token my chain of gold with the Palgrave's modallio to it set with diamonds which he gave me;

Item, I give to my son, Roger, four hundred twenty-four pounds due by my Lord Evers [=Eure] upon bond, which sum I would entreat the assistants to my executor for, and hereby charge my executor, may be put to the Chamber of London for the child's best advantage, and he to receive the same at two and twenty years of age;

Item, forasmuch as by will I have left my son, Roger, meanliest provided for, I do by this order that my son, Robert, shall have my two ships, to give unto his brother, Roger, for them seven hundred pounds when he cometh to one and twenty years of age, which shall be paid to the said Roger by my son, Robert, or his heirs at Grimsthorpe House whensoever he shall attain the years aforesaid;

In the mean season, I desire in all fatherly affection his said eldest brother to be tender and good unto him, as well for his education as otherwise, since the rest of his brethren shall not have so much cause to be burdensome unto him;

Item, I give my son, Peregrine, all the books I have at Berwick and Eresby, and half my library at London, but my whole library at Grimsthorpe, the other half of that at London, as all my goods not bequeathed, I give my son, Robert;

Item, I give to them wait on me in my chamber twenty pounds apiece to three of them, to my page, twenty pounds, and to the boy forty shillings;

Item, I give to every gentleman at that time in my service in my house five pounds, and to every woman five marks, to be paid by my executor;

Thus acknowledging myself most bound unto God, that neither made me abound with worldly trash not yet suppressed with poverty, expecting riches and joys that never fail in his highest kingdom, whereunto through his mercy I have by the scale(?) of faith set forward one foot, and apparently discerned the difference between heaven and earth, and so apprehended steadfastly the joys of the one by that I have temporally here observed, for I am sure my Redeemer liveth, and he shall stand the last upon the earth, and though after me my skin [sic?] worms destroy this body, yet shall I see God in my flesh, whom I myself shall see and mine eyes shall behold and no other for me, though my reins are consumed within me, so to his mercy I commend you(?) all beloved race(?) and friends.

Berwick, the sixth of August one thousand five hundred ninety-nine. P. Willoughby.
