SUMMARY: The document below is a letter dated 18 July 1574 written by the diplomat Sir Henry Killigrew (1525x8-1603) from Edinburgh to an unidentified correspondent whom he addresses as 'your Honour'. Sir Francis Walsingham (c.1532-1590) has been suggested as the letter's recipient. In a postscript to the letter Killigrew writes:

I beseech your Honour to import these to my Lord Treasurer and my Lord of Leicester, for I have no time now to write to them.

Among other reports he has heard concerning foreign affairs, Killigrew includes a report of Oxford's flight from England on 1 July 1574. Since Killigrew appears to have received this and other information from sources on the continent, the statement that Oxford traveled by way of Bruges to Brussels may be factually correct. For further information on Oxford's connections with the Yorke family and his flight from England in the company of Lord Edward Seymour (1548-1574), Edward Yorke and two others, see the will of Edmund Yorke, TNA PROB 11/89, f. 161.

The remainder of the letter has not been transcribed.

That my Lord of Oxford and my Lord Seymour were fled out of England & passed by Bruges to Brussels.
